FROM JUDY GAIN, BOARD CHAIR

The Pasadena Community Foundation is a reflection of people’s charitable passions. In this report, we will highlight new partnerships developed. These charitable endowments support grant making to causes our donors care about, creating sustainable legacies.

We are also pleased to share some key accomplishments:

PCF is now licensed to offer Charitable Gift Annuities.

We have formed a consortium of local nonprofits to launch this program. Donors may make a gift to PCF or their favorite Pasadena area nonprofit and receive a fixed income for life.

Our “Be 1 in 100” campaign surpassed its goal — we now have 101 named endowments established to support Pasadena.

In 2015 PCF awarded over $3.6 million in grants.

Of this $564,918 was awarded in 2015 as part of our discretionary grants for Pasadena area nonprofits; in 2016 (YTD) an additional $568,660 was awarded through this program. Our goal... $1 million per year.

YOUR PASSION. YOUR LEGACY.
Greater Impact Together
The Pasadena Child Health Foundation (PCHF) recently awarded $150,000 in grants. With a focus on prevention, the Foundation’s mission is to reduce disparities that adversely impact the health of children. PCHF has granted nearly $2.7 million over the past ten years to Pasadena area nonprofits.

PCHF’s roots go back to 1922 and a nonprofit that was established to help children with tuberculosis, the Pasadena Preventorium. Eventually the Preventorium closed, the building was sold and in 1951, the proceeds were used to incorporate PCHF as a private foundation.

Another significant milestone in PCHF’s history occurred in 1995 when the Foundation was the beneficiary of a $5 million bequest from a trust that had been established in 1928 with 100 shares of IBM stock. This gift allowed PCHF to make an even greater impact in the community.

In June of this year, the PCHF Board voted to dissolve as a private foundation and continue its mission through the Pasadena Community Foundation (PCF). According to Board Chair, Tara Westman, “The PCHF Board saw that efficiencies could be achieved and long-term grant making could grow through this new arrangement. PCF has staffed the PCHF for the past 18 months, and together we have done a lot of analysis and thinking about how best to ensure the perpetuity of the Foundation’s work.” When the transfer of PCHF’s assets – approximately $6 million – is complete it will represent the largest single gift to the Pasadena Community Foundation in its history.

PCHF funded Water Safety/Learn-to-Swim Lessons for PUSD 3rd Graders at the Rose Bowl Aquatics Center.

VISTA NOVA RENAISSANCE COMMUNITY ENDOWMENT
Created a Legacy to Carry On the Work of 50 Years
In 1960, 13 members of the Pasadena Braille Club, led by Hadley Stephenson, had a dream to deliver quality housing and services to blind adults in the Pasadena area. By 1966, they had raised the funds needed to purchase and remodel a home to create 17 furnished studio apartments with an array of services including three meals a day and cleaning assistance.

For 50 years, Vista Nova residents had the support of trained therapists and inspired volunteers who served as readers and provided transportation and companionship. “The first time I attended the Tournament of Roses parade the volunteer who was with me was particularly good at describing the floats as they went by,” said Wilbur Riffle, one of the residents at Vista Nova.

The Pasadena Community Foundation (PCF) began supporting the Vista Nova Renaissance Community in 1973, providing grants for furnishings, computers, and building repairs. The home closed and in 2016 the funds from the sale of the property were used to establish an endowment fund at PCF. Grants from the endowment will support organizations that offer services to blind people in the greater Pasadena area, continuing the work of the Vista Nova founders.
Substance abuse is devastating Pasadena and communities across the country. Drug and alcohol addiction is taxing our health care system and police force; it’s tearing the very social fabric of many families in the community. Tragically, many young people are trading their futures for powerful synthetic drugs.

There is hope; methods continue to improve to help people deal with their addictions. Public perception is also changing, with greater understanding of the importance of proper care to treat the underlying problems.

The Pasadena Community Foundation has been a longtime supporter of several local organizations that provide effective treatment options. These organizations are working on the front lines in fighting substance abuse, and help make Pasadena a stronger community for everyone. The following five organizations have received a recent grant from the Foundation.

Overcoming Substance Abuse

Grandview
Grandview prides itself in treating the whole person, not just the substance abuse problem. Each person at Grandview is assigned a therapist and a counselor upon arrival. In addition to the individualized support services, Grandview offers classes in anger management and meditation to help patients prepare to deal with life’s challenges. This includes helping with ongoing health problems and getting the family directly involved in the recovery process. A key element in Grandview’s success is a full-time job expert who is skilled at finding work for people who are difficult to place.

Community Support for Walter Hoving Home
When a woman first arrives at Walter Hoving Home, she is welcomed with lots of love from the staff and residents. The Home offers individualized therapy sessions tailored to best meet the needs of each resident. There is also a special focus on faith and spiritual change, which helps women find the strength to overcome their addiction problems. Over the years, Walter Hoving Home has helped hundreds of women reconnect with their families and successfully re-engage with the community.
Casa de las Amigas
Casa de las Amigas is committed to providing the best possible service to women who suffer from drug or alcohol addiction. Casa encourages direct family involvement in treatment through weekly group discussions and individual sessions to improve family dynamics. In addition, Casa’s therapists and counselors are specially trained to address the kinds of mental health issues that are so often associated with addiction. They also work to support women’s health needs, ranging from physical fitness, to nutrition, to medical care.

Gooden Center
The Gooden Center is committed to the long-term recovery process, with a focus on putting families back together. Gooden has facilities for people who need long-term treatment, and a new center that provides outpatient care to a steady stream of patients who need less support. This allows Gooden to provide support for people who are just starting to deal with their addiction, as well as those who have successfully gone through treatment and need help dealing with life’s challenges.

Gooden has recently applied to California’s Department of Health to license nine inpatient beds for patients who also suffer from mental illness. According to Tom McNulty, CEO, “We often see patients with a dual diagnosis of substance abuse disorder and mental illness. This license will give us greater resources and flexibility to serve our population.” Finally, Gooden also provides aftercare for life, which has dramatically improved long-term success rates.

Impact House
Impact House is one of the largest substance abuse centers in Pasadena. The organization has 130 beds at the main campus, two outpatient facilities, and several transitional homes, helping up to 400 people at any one time overcome their addictions. Impact House provides specialized training to its counselors and therapists, which gives patients the benefit of the best treatment techniques. Impact House also has counselors who provide inmates with substance abuse treatment at two prisons in Southern California. When they are released, many go directly to Impact House for additional treatment, followed by transitional housing and job training.

She moved to Pasadena in 1986 to attend dental school and complete her training as an oral surgeon. She immediately fell in love with her new home. “Pasadena has the same feel as the town where I grew up. It’s a much larger city, but manages to have an incredibly strong sense of community.”

One of the things Kim loves most about Pasadena is the philanthropic attitude of so many people who truly want to help those in need. Earlier this year, she decided she wanted to do more to help. She got in touch with the Pasadena Community Foundation and decided to set up an unrestricted endowment. “There are so many wonderful nonprofits, and the team at PCF does a great job deciding which organizations to support each year. They are the experts, and I trust them to best allocate funds from the endowment I established.”

For the past year, the Pasadena Community Foundation has increased the number of endowments which support Pasadena with the “Be 1 in a 100” campaign. “We were so pleased that Kim agreed to be our 100th Endowment,” says Judy Wilson, Development Director. “People like Kim who generously support our community, make Pasadena the place she fell in love with.”

A Bequest of an IRA

Cynthia had a full and busy life working and spending time with her daughter and grandchildren. So she relied on key advisors such as Gamble Jones Investment Counsel to help her with financial matters. Gamble Jones introduced her to the Pasadena Community Foundation where Cynthia established both a donor advised fund and a fund designated to support programs at the Pasadena Senior Center where she had worked for many years. The Cynthia P. Rosedale Fund for Seniors will continue to provide support to the senior center for years to come. Cynthia also named PCF as the beneficiary of her IRA. When she passed away earlier this year, the IRA was transferred to PCF to become an unrestricted, named endowment, the Cynthia P. Rosedale Endowment.

Cynthia was born and raised in Pasadena. She graduated from Westridge and the University of California-Berkeley. She returned to Pasadena where she raised her daughter, Katie Enney, also a Westridge graduate. Cynthia devoted her life to helping seniors and she made a charitable provision to support them after she passed. She also loved her community, and (quietly and often anonymously) was generous in her giving. The endowment she created through this bequest will ensure that her support for Pasadena continues.
