FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

What is a community foundation?

A community foundation is an organization that makes grants for charitable purposes in a specific community or region, and acquire funds from a variety of donors and sources. PCF is one of more than 800 community foundations in the U.S.

What is the difference between a community foundation and other foundations?

Community foundations are recognized by the IRS as 501c3 public charities, and are able to accept 100 percent tax-deductible donations to the maximum extent allowed by the law (more than allowed for private foundations). Community foundation's assets are derived from diverse sources, whereas private foundations are typically the assets of one family or institution. Private foundations are required by law to pay out (give away) a minimum of five percent of their assets each year. Community foundations do not have an annual payout requirement, however PCF's annual spending policy adheres to the guidelines of the Uniform Prudent Management of Institutional Funds Act (UPMIFA).

How Do I Create a Fund?

PCF helps donors use all types of liquid and illiquid assets as charitable contributions, including cash, stocks and securities, IRA or other retirement funds, real estate, life insurance products, and high value personal property. PCF also accepts bequests and deferred gifts of estate. PCF staff will work with you to determine the type of fund that fits your needs, you will sign a fund agreement, and PCF will assist in the transfer of assets to your new charitable fund.

Do I have to be a Pasadena resident to create a fund? Are grants made from donor advised funds restricted to Pasadena?

No — while many fund holders live in Pasadena, PCF welcomes donors from across the country. Donor advised grants may be made to public charities anywhere in the U.S. at the donor's discretion. PCF's discretionary grants are the only ones restricted to the Pasadena community.

Does my organization have to serve Pasadena to receive a grant? What about the rest of the San Gabriel Valley?

Yes — PCF's grants are restricted to organizations, institutions, programs, and projects working in the footprint of the Pasadena Unified School District, which includes Pasadena, Sierra Madre, and Altadena. An organization serving a larger area may apply for a grant, but the project requesting funding must be Pasadena-focused.

GRANT MAKING PROGRAMS

Together with its donors, PCF has invested millions of dollars in Pasadena through annual grants to local nonprofits, and distributes donor advised grants to organizations across the country. PCF also administers scholarship funds and other component funds of the Foundation.

PCF's local grantmaking programs focus on six areas of interest: Arts & Culture; Education; Animal Welfare & Environment; Health; Human Services (including Senior Services); and Youth Services. PCF builds substantive, long-term relationships with local charitable organizations that provide a thorough understanding of specific community needs. This insight allows the Foundation to be responsive to those needs through diverse grant programs.
